

Meet Janet Ruhe-Schoen

JANET RUHE-SCHOEN, writer-in-residence at Desert Rose Bahá'í Institute, has lived in the Casa de Rosas since winter of 2016, having moved there from New York State, where she'd lived for some 20 years. She's a native of Allentown, Pennsylvania and lived in many other places including the Mescalero Apache Reservation in New Mexico; Piura, Peru and Santiago de Chile.

She's the author of books of biography:

A Love Which Does Not Wait; The Nightingale, Bahá'u'lláh

Champions of Oneness: Louis Gregory and His Shining Circle

Rejoice in My Gladness: The Life of Táhirih

Her books are available via Baha'i Bookstore, Amazon.com, and various other websites. A Love Which Does Not Wait has been published in Portuguese and Spanish and will soon be published in German. She recently completed the book Son of Spirit: The Master in the Mirror of Meditation and Memory.

Janet worked as an investigative environmental journalist in Chile, and as a feature writer on the arts and other topics for magazines and newspapers in the U.S. She has presented programs on the subjects of her biographies at Desert Rose as well as at Green Acre Baha'i School in Maine; Bosch Baha'i School in California; Women's Rights National Historical Park in Seneca Falls, NY; the Louis Gregory Race Unity Symposium at Austin-Tillotson University in Texas; and other venues. She currently curates and presents two radio shows for the Desert Rose radio station, Kure-lp 106.1 fm: Spirit Stories, a show about Messengers of the Sacred from all ages and all parts of the world; and the poetry show, A Wave in the Mind.
